

Mumbling Minnie

A group of the coeds were talking about a couple of the coeds. "They're nice, darling girls," gushed one, "I know because my brother has taken them out lots of times!"

Quered a sceptic—"And they're still nice, darling girls?"

Something About a Soldier
I go for the boys in the C.O.T.C. I'm inclined to think that they like me.

In a very brotherly sort of way—Platonic friendship, one might say.

They say . . .
"He was plastered."
"He's a WHAT!"

"I think law is a silly profession. Imagine having to be called to the bar!"

"Familiarity breeds contempt."
Disillusion
My love for him was a lovely flame (None of the others were quite the same).

As I rushed up the steps to my 8 o'clock
I saw a large hole in the heel of his sock.
It's a pity a flame of Love so bright
Should die so quickly at such a sight.

PERSONAL TO MULLIGAN
Dear Mr. Mulligan, I resent
What I presume was malicious intent—
Your use of My Name for a Woman of Sin!

The Greeks had a word for her.
But it wasn't 'Min'.
I read only that part—and that because I wondered what kind of a wench 'Minnie' was.

Lament for the Union I Guess
Ah spacious rooms unfroed by coed feet!
Last stronghold of the men (six-ninety Sherbrooke street)
We've still got R.V.C. Why should we mourn?

We look on you with pity, not with scorn.
The Union sadly lacks the woman's touch
But if you do not want us, we will not grumble (much).
Why should we women question?
Whatever you do is best.

(I bet it's pretty dull upstairs at six-ninety Sherbrooke West).
—R.V.C. '41.

Nix on Knees
Knee-length socks exaggerate—
Idiosyncrasies of your gait.
Tendencies to ugly FAT.
Boniness and flaws like that.
Bow-legs and muscles are emphasized.

And faults you never realized!
How very much worse seem pale
Knock-Knees
You have bad taste. I hope you freeze.

Plea to Profs.
Why must professors whose lectures come
At the Zero Hour of twelve-to-one
So often talk of drink and meat . . .
Hey professor! When do we eat?

"I have to go and tutor my little boy this aft." announced a sophomore.
"One of her unspeakable dependents perhaps (or didn't you read the Charities Appeal?)"

Members of the graduating class are invited by the Alumnae Society of McGill University to a meeting on Wednesday, November sixth at four o'clock in the R.V.C. drawing room.

Miss Elizabeth Monk, a Bachelor of Common Law will speak on "A fabulous History."

I.V.C.F. GROUP HAS FIRESIDE MEETING

Harold Lewis Addresses Christian Fellowship Gathering

The Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship group held their first fireside meeting of the year at the home of Ronald Smith, on Saturday evening. The speaker for the occasion was Mr. Harold Lewis, former minister of the Garden City Baptist Church.

Throughout the address three important points were stressed: Bible Study, Prayer and Service. Regarding the first point Mr. Lewis said "that we must feed on the word of God and thereby gain spiritual strength, much as we gain physical strength from our daily food, and the only place to find it is in the Bible." Continuing to his second topic, he likened mankind to deep-sea divers exploring the ocean floors saying "that they were in a foreign atmosphere, but were kept alive by the vital air-line from above, and prayer is the life-line between God and man." His final remarks called the attention of his hearers to the necessity of service, remarking "that as we must exercise in our daily lives so too we must do so in our spiritual lives through Christian witness," concluding he said "that all three points were inter-linked and effective witnesses must employ both the study of the Bible and the use of prayer."

After the speaker had concluded, a short discussion was held, and was followed by a brief and enjoyable hour of fellowship during which refreshments were served. It was announced by Gordon Thomas, president, that the next meeting of the group would be at a luncheon to be held in the Union Hall on October 30th. All students are cordially invited.

Members of the graduating class are invited by the Alumnae Society of McGill University to a meeting on Wednesday, November sixth at four o'clock in the R.V.C. drawing room.

Miss Elizabeth Monk, a Bachelor of Common Law will speak on "A fabulous History."

NEWS ITEM

Police Heads Deny Officers Sent To Meeting of Club at McGill

City, provincial and Royal Canadian Mounted Police officials said today that no officers had been detailed to last night's meeting of the McGill University Political Economy Club, called to discuss conscription, which was adjourned because the club executive "had reason to believe" that police were present. A statement by the executive read at the meeting said that police were present and that "this would be unfair to the speakers."

The meeting was scheduled to discuss the subject "Is Conscription of Manpower and Wealth Desirable?" The first paper was to have been presented by Lucien Croteau, former secretary to Mayor Camillien Houde.

Croteau said afterward that he would have been willing to read his paper since he "did not propose to say anything contrary to the Defence of Canada Regulations."

(Montreal Daily Star.)

This piece of news above seems to us to be . . .

Object Lesson No. 1

This is the first instalment in a series of articles in which the Daily will attempt to inform those who have not yet found out what the functions are of some of our country's public services.

Today's object lesson, which will probably be the last, will deal with police systems.

The police forces are made up of Canadian citizens who are charged with keeping order. Although their presence among law-abiding citizens is expected and usually appreciated, it has been found that people who had gone or intend to go against the statutes do not welcome the company of the minions of the law.

If this is a correct generalization, it follows by logical means that those who make last-minute changes in their plans when faced with police surveillance, or rather alleged police surveillance, may correctly be suspected of having a guilty conscience.

Let's win the war.

Carnegie Music Room Opens Today at Conservatorium Hall

"Comprehensive Collection of Recordings Made Available Monday Through Friday From 10 a.m. to 6 p.m." Says Dean Clarke

The Carnegie Music Room is to be opened today. Its collection of records is presented to McGill University by the Carnegie Foundation. Dean Clarke commenting on the Music Room said: "The room cannot be opened without having a responsible person in charge; as a result there will have to be some periods during the day when the room will have to be closed. Those who are willing to some time in order that the room shall remain open as formerly, are asked to consult D'Arcy Shea at the Conservatorium." The Music Room is unlike the Conservatorium of music in that all McGill students are allowed to use it from 10.00 a.m. to 6.00 p.m. with certain possible exceptions.

The recordings consist of selections from outstanding composers and others from less well known composers. The collection represents the growth and development of musical composition from the thirteenth century to the present day; it also contains some very rare and valuable selections.

For the benefit of students who are new to McGill, requests can be made by writing the name of the composition and waiting their turn. This hall is situated in the McGill Conservatorium situated at the corner of University and Sherbrooke.

Lavolette Addresses Sociologists in R.V.C.

At 8.15 p.m. on Thursday, October 31st, the opening meeting of the Sociological Society will be held in the R.V.C. Common Room. Professor Lavolette, guest speaker at the meeting, will discuss "The Role of the Sociologist in Modern Life."

A newcomer in the Department of Sociology at McGill, Professor Lavolette was previously connected with the University of Washington, in Seattle, Washington, and has done a great deal of research work on the Japanese minority question in the United States.

Following the speech there will be a short discussion, after which the meeting will continue as an informal social evening. The executive has stated that the meeting is open to all who are interested.

Student Literature Requested for 'Forge'

The editorial staff of the "Forge," McGill's annual magazine, are anxious to make this year's magazine more representative than ever of the university as a whole, and to this end would welcome all literary contributions which the students may make. The publication has been criticized in past years for its too narrow appeal, and only the students themselves can eliminate this by contributing of their literary ability. Material for the magazine includes articles, particularly on subjects of current interest, short stories and poetry. Any such contributions should be handed in as soon as possible, as the time limit is November 20th.

A change in the cover construction from past years is also planned, and the use of the University combination of red and white will be made. Instead of red paper and black type, as used formerly, there will be white covers with illustrations in red. Any student who wishes to submit suitable drawings for the cover may get in touch with Susan O'Reilly at the R.V.C. as soon as possible. It is expected that this year's issue of the "Forge" will be ready for sale in early December.

Essential for membership is an elementary knowledge of the rules of contract bridge. It is not necessary to come with partners, as those coming alone will be paired off. Prizes consisting of packages of cigarettes will be provided for the winning teams.

WOMEN'S UNION DISCUSS PLANS FOR THIS YEAR

Executive Hold Preliminary Meeting Tonight

EVERY COED MEMBER

Main Session Held Tomorrow in R.V.C. Common Room

The Executive of the Women's Union will hold a meeting tonight to have a preliminary discussion of points to be brought up at the semi-annual meeting of the Union, which will take place tomorrow in the R.V.C. Common Room.

The president, Marjorie Gaunt, stated that the purpose of the meeting tomorrow is to discuss the plans for the Senior Dinner, the amount of money per student that should go into the reserve fund, and the amount that should be donated to the charities.

"Every coed is a member of the Women's Union," stated a member of the Executive, "and we wish to see a good turnout at this meeting tomorrow, especially to have first year students represented. This is your opportunity to get an insight into the workings of the Women's Union. We will serve refreshments to all those attending the meeting."

George C. McDonald, the chairman of the Amalgamated Drive on the Campus, will give a short address to the women-students on the charities.

COM. STUDENTS WILL ASSEMBLE

Dr. Beach to Outline New Curriculum

Open Discussions to Feature Informal Meeting in Union

With the object of introducing Dr. Beach, the new acting director of the School of Commerce, at an informal occasion to all commerce undergraduates, the Commerce Undergraduate Society has decided to hold a Smoker at the Union Reading room on Thursday next at 8 p.m. All Commerce students, both men and women, are cordially invited, and Freshmen and Freshettes are to regard the attendance at this affair as compulsory. Tickets at the price of 25 cents may be obtained from the respective class presidents.

Dr. Beach, as Tom Dailey, president of the Commerce Undergraduate Society, stated, has shown great interest in the progress of studies and recreational activities of commerce students and is anxious to become familiar with the opinions of individuals on the present Commerce Curriculum and on Faculty activities. Dr. Beach will precisely outline and explain the new curriculum and then an open discussion will take place whereby every student will have the opportunity to participate by means of criticism or suggestion on the changes or improvements which eventually shall be made. "We wish to hear every single student's opinion" a representative of the Faculty of Commerce commented.

The Commerce students' program of activities for the coming season will then come to discussion and, as Tom Dailey explained, each student who has any suggestion to make regarding debating, sports, or any other competitions and activities should stand up and speak freely. It is hoped that a close collaboration of all students will thus be achieved. Tom Dailey concluded.

Smokes and refreshments will be passed around to keep the tongues going and every man and woman will have an equal share in rendering the smoker a real success.

Spooks, Ghosts Will Feature Thursday Hop

S.C.M. Plans Costume Festival for Hallowe'en

By M.A.H.

Did you ever see a spook dancing? Well, you will, if you go to the Hallowe'en Party planned by the S.C.M. for this Thursday evening in Strathcona Hall.

And you will see even more "phenomenal phenomena" than that, according to Popsy Francis, chairman of the entertainment committee. Ghosts, ghostesses, spectres, leprechauns, Mary Queen of Scots minus head—all distinguished phantoms are included on the list of specially invited guests.

Warning! Beware of witches on broomsticks or black cats crossing your path! Rumour has it that a special haunting committee is being organized, intent on perpetrating dire witchcraft on all those not appearing in Hallowe'en costume. After all, somebody has to do the dishes!

Hints of Druidal sacrifice and bloodcurdling horror emanate from the seething cauldron in which, metaphorically, the entertainment committee is sitting. The program they are cooking includes games, folk-dancing and refreshments, followed by a Hallowe'en Hop to the strains of the Nickelodeon, and a Grand March of the Spooky Spectres.

Festivities start at 8.15 p.m. in an atmosphere of eerie other-worldliness. Owls will hoot, chains will clank, bats will fly, in true October 31st fashion. Dress your dubbiest and run your chances of being elected King of the Hallowe'en Honky Tonks.

Admission is 25 cents. Everybody is invited.

"LIVING SPACE" TOPIC OF PROF. M. J. BONN

Room 44 in the Arts Building at 8.30 p.m. will be the scene of a public address by Professor Moritz J. Bonn, eminent authority on international problems, who will lecture on "Living Space."

Professor Bonn is not new to McGill University as this is not the first time that he has been a guest of the department of political science and economics, having lectured here last November on Nazi Economy. He has had a long career in the field of international politics for he has lectured for many years in prominent American Universities and is at present attached to the London School of Economics.

Universities are not the only places where Professor Bonn has been of service, being attached as economics advisor to the British Embassy in Washington for a time.

It is expected that there will be a question period at the conclusion of the lecture.

The Arts and Crafts Exhibition opening takes place in the Union Ballroom at 10 a.m. today, and from then until Friday, the varied displays will be open to all members of the faculty and student body, whether they are participants or not. Miss Ruth Dingle of the English Department and Mr. John Bland of the School of Architecture will be present at the opening.

This exhibition had its inception in the latter part of the 1938-1939 session at McGill, in order that the entrants might have the entire summer in which to complete their entries.

Objects on Display.

The objects on display are widely varied, and include the following: oil and water colour paintings; leather work, including cuts; woodcuts; photographs and photographic slides (the faculty as well as members of the Camera Club contributed to the photographic exhibit); stage settings done by Archie Etienne; plaster busts; ship model and stagecoach model done by a member of the Zoology department; and an aeroplane model.

A special selection, to be shown at the galleries of the Art Association, 1379 Sherbrooke St. W., will be chosen from the entries made at the Union. The committee making this selection is Dr. Files, Mr. Judah, Mr. Holgate and Mr. Taylor.

Entrants to be Notified.

Entrants whose work has been selected for the Art Gallery will be notified on Monday, November 4. The other exhibitors are asked to remove their entries on the following day or on the 6th at the very latest.

This exhibition is intended as a recognition of artistic talent in the University, and will serve to promote creative work and the further indulgence of artistic hobbies. It is unique in the history of McGill and, if successful, will undoubtedly be repeated in future years.

Women's Military Training

Perhaps it will do no harm to add further emphasis to what is sometimes said of universities—that the students tend to live more or less in a world of their own, sometimes losing the trend of the events in the outside world to a surprising extent. Possibly this accusation applies more particularly to the coeds. Their interests in the main lie beyond the realm of politics and international affairs and they govern themselves accordingly. But in view of the present situation, it seems they should at least have an intelligent grasp of world affairs. Regardless of whether students are Canadians, Americans or any other nationality, in a few years they will have a role to play in this world, and chiefly from their ranks do we look for the leaders of the future.

The attitude, which refuses to take cognizance of present conditions because they are difficult and unpleasant, is fatal and by no means as infrequent as one might suppose. Only by understanding the present crisis and the mistakes which led to it, can we hope in the future to do better.

Perhaps also there is a failure to realize the significance of the present struggle in our life at the University. It is impossible to think of old McGill under Nazi domination; yet that is the situation of many great continental universities. We ourselves are free to obtain our education under the most favorable conditions, only because others have taken up the struggle on our behalf. The least we can do is to keep abreast of the times to the best of our ability and serve our country and nation to the utmost, as we are given the opportunity. For coeds, now, that means the war training schedule, and though it certainly means sacrifices in time and energy, they should realize that it should be undertaken not as a burden, but rather as a privilege—that of sharing in the national war effort!

Arts and Crafts Exhibition

The McGill Exhibition of Arts and Crafts opens in the Union Ballroom today. This is the first move of its kind ever to be attempted in this university; it has been a long time in coming but it may prove to be the edge of a very large wedge.

Students often find it difficult to link their college activities with hobbies and interests which have no part in them. Facilities of the McGill Conservatorium have done a great deal for those interested in music. The Forge offers an opportunity of experience for those whose talents are in the literary line. Now at last McGill artists have a chance of showing what they can do. There is no reason why McGill should not encourage all kinds of talent while its owners are still at the university instead of waiting to give graduates credit for their achievement.

The range of work accepted for this first display has been sufficiently broad to include practically all types of painting, designing, photography, and craft-work. Varying all the way from the aesthetic to the commercial, it should be of just as much interest to the layman as to the art critic. And such an exhibition cannot live on contributors alone. It must have the interest of the student body. It needs and deserves such support. It has taken the initiative in the bridging of a very definite gap at McGill. There are few universities of this size which are not equipped with some facilities to offer study for those interested in art and craft work. At many there are departments of Fine Arts. An exhibition of this kind, supported by the students as a whole, should prove the need of development of this aspect of McGill activity and study.

The Exhibition of Arts and Crafts will be open in the Union every day this week. After this the best exhibits will be shown in the Art Gallery.

AT THE CAPITOL.

"PASTOR HALL."

James Roosevelt production (British made) released through United Artists. Produced by John Boulting and directed by Ray Boulting. Screenplay by Leslie Arliss from a story by Ernst Toller. Photography by Mitz Greenbaum.

James Roosevelt's production of Ernst Toller's powerful play "Pastor Hall" is probably the most potent instrument of anti-Nazi propaganda yet shown on stage or screen. The candid treatment by Director Ray Boulting of a story based on Martin Niemöller's fighting stand against Fascism carries a wallop like a mule's kick. Audience complacency vanishes in the light of its incisive attack. The photography is brutal in its realism, the dialogue, pungent and effective. Against British-made "Pastor Hall," the Hollywood production of "The Mortal Storm" stands convicted of kid-glove treatment—a grave offence in dealing with so imminent a topic.

Seeing the film, one is painfully reminded that five years ago it might have had an amazing effect in educating people to the degradation and horror that is life under the Nazi heel. It brings to mind Archibald McLellan's rousing condemnation of artists and intellectuals who, with the weapons at their command, failed to trumpet aloud the true nature of Hitlerism, until engulfed in its devastating surge across Europe.

If your nerves aren't frayed at the edges and your personal attitude toward present-day Germany is uncertain, "Pastor Hall" is prescribed seeing.

The entire production is built around the brilliant Wilfrid Lawson as the Lutheran pastor of Altdorf and his performance matches any we have seen recently for vigour, sincerity and compelling power. A grown-up Nova Pilbeam plays Christine Hall with a hint of straining while Seymour Hicks looks and acts the part of a retired German general convincingly. The one disturbing feature about the whole production is the pronounced English accent displayed by almost all the players.

Of particular interest to members of the McGill Political Economy Club, the feature attraction at the Loew's this week revolves around the commencement of the North West Rebellion and part played in it by the much feared, yet highly respected R.C.M.P. The picture is a corker and there can be little doubt that it will be enjoyed by many who are not members of the McGill organization which is so closely connected with the law enforcing heroes of the great Canadian outdoors (and evidently indoors as well).

The story is good, actually being a page from Canadian history with an added romantic touch. The technicolor photography portrays scenes which are beyond description in their magnificence, the R.C.M.P. stations, Indian villages, backwoods mission settlements and general views of the Rockies all being photographic natural.

C. B. DeMille deserves great credit for this latest addition to his triumphs on the motion picture screen in which he presents an accurate and dramatic tale from the pages of Canadian history, but his greatest triumph is in the admirable choice of his cast.

The girls will just love Gary Cooper as the Texas Ranger who, on a special assignment wrecked the Rebellion of the West, and rightly so as he fits the part to perfection. Madeleine Carroll, as the nursing sister on the frontier does far more than merely look beautiful, while Paulette Goddard as a cute little savage acts as if she were brought up in a Canadian Indian village. Preston Foster, Robert Preston, Lynne Overman and Akim Tamiroff, with due apologies to each of them, act as if they were merely being natural in front of a camera.

The film is truly exciting and interesting, and with the hand of DeMille directing its destinies, it leaves little to be desired in the way of entertainment.

M-G-M Picture directed by Robert Z. Leonard. Screenplay by Lionel Houser. Photography by George Folsey.

Jeff Thompson.....Melvyn Douglas
Mr. Sherwood.....Raymond Walburn
Phillip Booth.....Lee Bowman
Vickey Sherwood.....Bonita Granville

Beth Hampshire.....Ann Morris

Another of those light sophisticated comedies, which have become so popular since the days of "Theodora Goes Wild," graces the screen of the Palace Theatre in the form of "Third Finger, Left Hand." A very intriguing title, and a very intriguing movie. The plot has just the right amount of complication, the scenario has just the right amount of cleverness, and the actors and actresses have just the right amount of reality to make this a truly entertaining movie.

Briefly, the story deals with an attractive young editor of a fashion magazine, played by Myrna Loy, who procures an imaginary husband, realizing that a woman in her position needs one, in order to protect her interests. That works all very well providing she is not in love with anyone. When she meets Melvyn Douglas, a young artist, and falls in love with him, then the difficulty arises of extricating herself from her pretended husband. How this is achieved constitutes one hour of enjoyment. The most amusing scene in the whole picture is one in which Douglas and Lee Bowman, a rival for Myrna's affections, strike a bargain, while standing on their heads.

Myrna Loy and Melvyn Douglas turn in their usual good performance. Bonita Granville, as the young sister, plays her role with adolescent exuberance. Raymond Walburn, as the father, has a good scene.

Several excellent added attractions complete the program. J. P. Priestly's "Britain at Bay" deserves mention, as does a clever cartoon, "Romeo in Rhythm."

Knute (at age of 7).....John Sheffield

"The life of Knute Rockne is his own dedication to the youth of America, to the finest ideals of courage and sportsmanship of the whole world." This is the foreword of the film, which embodies one of the basic principles of our democratic system, for "Knute Rockne" is not merely a football picture. Rather, it shows, that sport is an outlet for the competitive spirit of youth, which Europe can express only in war.

Rockne, son of a poor Norwegian immigrant, grew up in the melting pot that is Chicago. After many years of struggle, he scraped together enough money to enter Notre Dame University, where his talent on the gridiron was equalled by his scholastic standing. By developing the forward pass as a major weapon of offense, he brought fame to the formerly obscure college. Later as coach, with such stellar material as George Gipp and the immortal Four Horsemen, he made The Fighting Irish a by-word wherever football is played.

The Editor,
McGill Daily.

Dear Sir,

I regret as much as anybody that the Carnegie Gramophone Room in the Conservatorium has had to remain closed. Obviously one can't open the Room without having a responsible person in charge. Ways and means of obtaining a paid official have been tried, but to no avail. However, a plan has been evolved by the Conservatorium Students and they are willing to try it—knowing how much the Room is appreciated. Commencing Monday, October 26th, the Room will be open each day, as before, but there will be some periods when the Room will have to be closed. Those who are willing to give some time in order that the room shall remain open as formerly are asked to consult D'Arcy Shen, at the Conservatorium. Next Monday the Room will be open from 10-12, and from 3 to 6. I am really opposed to the division of control between a number of people, but the risk of disappearing books and scores, and broken records, must be taken if the Room is to be opened at all.

I was very glad to see a suggestion, in one letter to the "Daily," that student societies might be willing to subscribe money for an attendant. This would be the satisfactory solution to what is now only a compromise. I appreciate the sentiment which prompted the proposal. I think we could get an attendant for about $150.

Needless to say, if for one reason or another the proposed scheme does not work, the Room will have to close.

Yours truly,

DOUGLAS CLARKE,
Dean Faculty of Music

Protest

Editor-in-Chief,

McGill Daily.

Dear Editor:

The Political Economy Club would have the women of McGill believe that this is a man's world. The coeds' recent petition against this time-honored dogma shows their interest in the Political Economy Club and in the issues which confront all students.

What transpired last Thursday at the Political Economy Club arouses the indignation of professors and students—both men and women. Are we willing to accept the precedent put forth by the Political Economy Club that all campus clubs submit their agenda to the police? Before there is any repetition of these undemocratic measures, let us have an explanation of what actually happened at the Political Economy Club; if there were police present, why? This is a direct threat to our academic freedom. If the Political Economy Club has any intention of maintaining their democratic standards, let them give us a complete report on last Thursday's proceedings.

To the argument that women, not being members, have no right to criticize, let us make it clear that we foresee that other campus organizations may be threatened in the same manner.

ing the sentiments of the corps studentium when I say that this is most deplorable. We must not, indeed we cannot, shut our eyes to the great works of literature written originally in these languages. The writings of Goethe, Schiller, Lessing and Grillparzer rank with those of any poet the world has yet produced. German philosophy, second only to that of Greece, has been raised to exalted heights by such powerful thinkers as Kant, Schopenhauer, Hegel, Fichte and Nietzsche. Similarly the names of Euripides, Aristophanes, Menander, Sophocles and Thucydides in the realm of literature, and Plato, Socrates, Aristotle, Parmenides, Zeno and Heraclitus in philosophy stir the depths of feeling in the heart of the true scholar.

In view of these facts, we must not let the present political situation in Europe obscure or distort our better judgment. We cannot blame Kant for the collapse of France; and how much less can that censure be levelled at Plato, whose language is spoken only in the Universities today! For my part, I find that as a student of German in this institution, I am subjected to much ridicule and even pointedly insulting remarks; likewise, a friend of mine, a student of Greek here, has been the butt of jokes, jibes, slander and insults because of his studies. I think—and here, I am sure, I am supported by most of my fellow students—that this is grossly unfair and unsporting. Let us cease to condemn all German thought, and those that study it, because of the errors of a few. Let us merely, in the spirit of fair-play and bonhomie which has always characterized McGill, view things in their proper perspective. It is so little to ask, and would repay in a small measure the heritage we have received from the truly great of Germany and Graecia Antiqua.

Yours truly,

"Fair-minded."

Air Force Scuttle Sailors In First Start of Season

Jack Keay Leads Way in 5-0 Triumph

Advantage Air Force By R.L.S.

Making their initial start in the newly formed McGill football loop, the Air Force team coached by Stu Smith got off to an auspicious beginning when they outscored the powerful Navy aggregation at Molson Stadium last Friday. The game featured well executed plays by each side, but the superior kicking of Air Force's Jack Keay was the ultimate factor that decided the contest.

For the Navy squad it was their first setback since drubbing the Army team last Wednesday. Their big guns in that game, Simpson and Robinson were almost stopped cold with the former only making a few good runs. The conclusion can now be virtually drawn that the Air Force crew will be the team to beat for the championship.

WINNER GETS PLACEMENT. Play seen-sawed during most of the first quarter, and finally after pushing their enemy back to within striking distance Frankie Wither sent Air Force into a 3-0 lead with a fine placement kick from the 15 yard stripe. This came right after Keay had kicked over the goal line only to have the play called back on a Navy offside, and Air Force forced to make the play over again. This quarter featured mostly line smashes as neither team cared to open up.

NAVY OPENS UP. However the Navy crew began to make things uneasy for the flyers as the second quarter progressed. Hall made a nice catch of Ward Byington's pass for a good gain. Simpson crashed the line for yards and the sailors moved into the enemy's territory. Rick Read on a lofty kick sent the flyers deep into their own end, but here the Air Force team made a spurt of their own, and a Morris to Wallace forward was good after the same Morris missed a 40 yard toss himself. After an exchange of kicks, half time sounded with the score still 3-0 for the airmen.

AIRMEN SCORE AGAIN. The third frame opened up still more, and Coach Buster Fletcher's men started on another determined drive to try and catch up. Byington tossed a nice pass to Stan Gibson who ran 12 more yards before being downed. McGibbon gained more ground for the sailors as he crashed the line for a first down. Read then almost reached the Air Force line when he ploughed through on a vigorous drive. After two plays that got nowhere, Byington flicked a forward over the goal line, but it was grounded, and Air Force gained possession again 25 yards out. Jack Keay kept up his fine kicking which kept the sailors back, and near the end of the period the sailors made a bad fumble at centre field which Carroll of Air Force recovered. The latter ran the ball back 15 yards where he passed to Victor who kept on going till he was hauled down on the Navy 15. On third down Keay kicked to deadline to run the count to 4-0 for the airmen. Just before the whistle went, Simpson scurried the Air Force right end for a 25 yard dash.

BYINGTON SHINES. Right after the start of the final quarter, Brown of Air Force intercepted a Navy forward and galloped to the sailor 25 yard line. A hurried up pass just failed to click as Marshall dropped the throw. Powles kicked on third down for the airmen and Navy were awarded a no yardage penalty on the catch. Byington on a faked kick made a nice gain around the left end. A long pass was again intercepted by Air Force as Dick Pare cut in to take it out of an opponent's hands. Navy had the ball handed right back to them on an Air Force fumble, and after an exchange of kicks Byington intercepted a forward and on the next play he heaved a long one to Stanforth who dropped it. Air Force made the final point when Jim Rapella kicked a long one to make it 5-0, and the game ended seconds later.

For the winners Keay, Pare and Catrol played bang-up games while Byington was the sparkplug for the sailors with Read and Gibson also turning in strong performances. The line-ups:
Air Force: ... flying wing ... Hall ... Rapella ... half ... McGibbon ... Johnson ... half ... Read ... Keay ... half ... Stronach ... MacFarland ... quarter ... Byington ... Leib ... snap ... Madill ... Winner ... inside ... Russell ... Beullack ... inside ... Gordon ... Benjamin ... middle ... Robinson ... Navy: ... middle ... Simpson ... Marshall ... outside ... Patch ... V. Young ... outside ... Gibson ... Air Force subs: Brown, Goldsborough, Morris, Powles, Victor, Wallace, Whitaker, T. Young. Navy subs: Bailey, Foster, Kobernick, McCallum, Norrish, Popovitch, Snager, Smibert, Brizer, Stanforth. Referee: H. Platt.

Redmen Fall in English Rugby

Westmount Team Win Saturday by 13-5 Score

On Saturday the McGill English Rugby Team played its second game of the season when it tackled its old rival the Westmount team on the latter's home ground. Lacking a number of its regular players, the Redmen suffered a reverse from Saturday week's first game when they were this time defeated 13-5 by their opponents who were considerably strengthened by the inclusion of four players from Western Canada.

The first half saw McGill making frequent rushes up the field but the team was unable to keep its gain as each time it was driven back, until in the latter part of this half the Redmen were forced to take up the defensive. Paterson scored twice for Westmount in this period, converting the first one and leaving the score 8-0 at half time in the opponent's favour.

REDMEN TRY HARD. McGill put up a much better fight in the second half, scoring a try off a pass to Knox who went over the line with about twenty players on top of him. Though the Redmen (Continued on Page Four)

WEST INDIANS WIN AT SOCCER

Defeat Rest by Five Goals to Two

Good Turnout on Saturday for Informal Game

The Soccer game between the West Indians of McGill and the Rest was played on the Upper Campus on Saturday, and resulted in a win for the West Indians by five goals to two. The game was due to start at 12.30 p.m. but as the West Indians were expected to be late it was agreed that so long as they turned up by one o'clock the Rest would play them. As it happened the West Indians were all on the field by 12.45, whereas the Rest never actually assembled a team, and by 1.10 p.m. they were forced to accept a couple of West Indians and the game began with nine on a side instead of the usual eleven. (The Rest means the other Soccer players of McGill who formed a team to oppose the West Indians.)

UNUSUAL GAME. The Referee was provided by the West Indians, but remained completely impartial, only blowing his whistle about five times in the game, presumably to avoid being (Continued on Page Four)

MUSTANGS MAUL R.M.C.

With practically the same team that copped last year's Senior Inter-collegiate title, the University of Western Ontario's Mustangs blitzed McGill's R.M.C. football squad to the tune of 65-0 last Saturday. The game was an exhibition affair at London and is the first of the series of games arranged for Western this year.

Touchdowns were cheap for the Western crew throughout the contest and 11 were marked up before the final whistle blew. Last year's stars, Kennedy, Szumowski and Moore, tallied most of the major markers and Woolley, a newcomer, proved his worth with a 100 yard run.

INTRAMURAL

MASS APPARATUS WORK

Thursday morning Platoons No. 16, 17 and 19 of Company D and Platoon No. 21 of Company E had the honour of being the first platoons to embark upon the second and more advanced phase of the military P.T. program. This new phase of work consisted of graded AGILITY EXERCISES performed on the various pieces of gymnastic apparatus with which our excellent gym is equipped.

The Mass Apparatus Work included movements on the Vaulting Box, the Low Horizontal Bar, the Climbing Ropes, the Mats, the Side-horse and the Parallel Bars. Platoons were broken up into six squads, one at each piece of apparatus. After performing the set movements on the one apparatus the squads moved on to the next in a definite rotational scheme so that at the end of the period each man had had an opportunity of taking part on all pieces of apparatus.

Only very elementary exercises were given but even some of these taxed the skill and co-ordination of some of the men who have evidently become rusty from lack of exercise over the past three or four years. On the whole, however, the performance was considerably above that of the ordinary run of recruits and the instructors feel that three or four weeks of this type of training will bring most of the stragglers up to par.

The mass apparatus work met with the hearty approval of all the students who took it. The variety of movements, the challenges to courage and co-ordination and the general conditioning values contained therein evoked real enthusiasm.

The agility exercises were given under the direction of Hay Finlay and Em Orlick who were most capably assisted by the following Squad Leaders: Hyman Hershman, J. Massue, Basil Burgess, Jerry Leonards, Art Henderson, Don Spearman, John Simpson and Dave Singerman.

SPORTS REPRESENTATIVES are requested to complete the questionnaires for their platoons and hand them in to the Athletic Office as soon as completed. The Indoor Sports activities will soon be in operation and all platoons should be represented. Students should make sure they have indicated their desires.

SWIMMING CLASSES for beginners will be conducted soon and since these will be limited to fifty in each group all are requested to sign up on the lists posted in the Gymnasium locker room as soon as possible. These classes will be at the Knight of Columbus pool on Tuesdays and Fridays at 5.30 p.m. and will begin as soon as fifty men have registered and will run for four weeks after which another group will start.

HOCKEY plans are proceeding apace for Interplatoon and Inter-company leagues to run concurrently on the Campus Rink and in an indoor Rink (yet to be stated), so get out the old skates and boots and sharpen them up. A hockey manager will likely be assigned to each company and these will work in conjunction with the Senior Hockey manager, to provide organization and administration. It is again emphasized that all those who wish to play will be given the opportunity if they will indicate their desire and turn out to the practices and games. It is hoped that members of last year's representative teams will coach the various teams and volunteers are requested to contact the Athletic Office.

B.W. & F. . . . Group instruction in these sports will begin this week so watch for the announcement and turn out, beginners especially are urged to take advantage of this chance of learning a valuable combatant sport.

VOLEYBALL . . . An Interplatoon league is being organized and Platoon representatives will be asked soon to arrange for their teams to attend a practice and if possible a demonstration game by experts will be staged to show the finer points of the game.

BASKETBALL will also begin soon and the Managers of this game have plans which will be announced in a few days.

The Film—
In Review

The title role offers a fine vehicle for the talents of Pat O'Brien. Rockne the man was played most convincingly, but there was a large gap between this and his portrayal of "Rock" the coach. As the latter he made two or three attempts to imitate the mannerisms of the real Knute. His most impressive scene was when he vindicated college football against the charges of professionalism.

Donald Crisp as Father Callahan gave a yeoman performance, and his final eulogy of his friend Rockne was a fitting climax to the picture. Albert Basserman, so outstanding in "Foreign Correspondent," rendered an equally superlative characterization as Father Newlands. Lately, the acting ability of Ronald Reagan seems to have improved, and as George Gipp he was one of the bright spots of the film. There was little opportunity for Gale Page to show her capabilities, which were so charmingly displayed in "Four Daughters" and "Four Wives."

The football sequences were very effective, but the newsreel aspect was barely camouflaged. The built-up nose slapped on the O'Brien profile by Pete Westmore altered it considerably, and beauty took a back seat to accuracy. The musical accompaniment consisted mainly of variations of the famous Notre Dame Victory Song, and the renditions of the University's choir were creditable.

"Knute Rockne" is definitely a propaganda picture, but it is the brand of propaganda that one likes to see on the screen. Laif Rockne left Norway for America, hoping to find in the New World a land where his children could grow up with an equal chance for success as all others. His son Knute, believing in football as a developer of strong bodies and clear minds, became one of America's outstanding figures, and looked to the game as a strengthener of character and sportsmanship among youth. When his tragic death in an airplane crash was reported, messages from the President of the United States and the King of Norway were received—paying tribute to the son of a humble Norwegian immigrant.

The second feature is a mildly diverting film which brings both tears and laughs from the audience. "Father Is a Prince," as it is entitled owes any success it may attain to the efforts of Grant Mitchell and Nana Bryant. Mitchell plays the role of a penny-wise carpet-sweeper manufacturer, who denies his family many necessities, and all for the sake of fattening the family bank account. Miss Bryant, as his self-sacrificing wife, is very convincing, and when she has a breakdown her parsimonious husband realizes the folly of excessive thrift and becomes a "regular guy." The film closes on this note, and sends the audience home happy.

McGill players in last Saturday's game were: Stewart, Graves, Knox, Nelson, Christian, Joyce, Brewerton, Lang, Tucker, Fraser, Walsh (Capt.), Faye, Holdridge, Mutch and Sudegen. charged with prejudice. Consequently there was considerable argument as to whether each goal scored was "offside" or not. Eventually, since the referee continued to be coy about giving a ruling, the offside rule was waived completely, and it was "every man for himself, and the Devil take the hindmost." (This has no direct reference to the Goalkeeper.)

The game was extremely scrappy. The Red had scored the only goal at the half-time change-over. (The first half lasted only 15 minutes, while the second went on for over half an hour, and was only brought to an end by a panic among several of the players who had Military Training at two o'clock.) After that the West Indians pulled themselves together and were going steadily ahead when the end came.

Although it made no pretence to good football, the game was hilarious and there were no casualties. It is possible that another and more official game will be played soon.

TRAINING SCHEME

Classes in Physical Training. The student body of the Royal Victoria College will be divided into four sections as follows:

Group I, hours: Monday, 2.00 p.m.; Wednesday, 2.00 p.m.
Group II, hours: Monday, 2.00 p.m.; Friday, 2.00 p.m.
Group III, hours: Wednesday, 2.00 p.m.; Friday, 2.00 p.m.

All women students of the second, third and fourth years taking the B.A. and B.Com. degree (with the exception of those taking lectures or laboratory work between two and four o'clock on Monday, Wednesday and Friday) are requested to report to the Assembly Hall, R.V.C. at two o'clock on Monday, October 28, 1940. From the number which is required to report at this time, there will be selected three groups of not more than sixty persons. Any surplus above these three groups will be selected according to their timetable for transfer to another section.

Those students from the years listed above who cannot attend the first parade are expected to report at the same place as follows: those who have no lectures at nine o'clock on Tuesday report at that hour at the place designated; the remaining students will report at ten o'clock.

Winifred Fairhead, Women's Editor;
Elspeth Russell, Photography Editor;
Jack L. Greenwood, Biography Editor;
Robert C. Esdale, Art Editor;

Winifred Fairhead, Greenwood and Esdale were re-elected to the same positions they held last year, while Elspeth Russell, who had been singled out from numerous others, it was reported, was given the position formerly held by Barney Smyth.

Commenting on the new slate of officers, Editor-in-Chief stated that this is the first time in recent years that so much experience has been manifest in an Annual Board. While he and the biography editor have had a thorough grounding in editing, typography, layout work and the handling of cuts, each one of the staff has a keen interest in photography—which he considered fortunate in view of the growth in importance through the years of the camera's role in the Annual. Anyone comparing successive Annuals, he stated, can see the increase in the number of pictures and the improvement in the photographs used, all of which makes the book more accurately pictorial and therefore more valuable to posterity.

The art editor who, he said, intends to elaborate upon the work he did last year will find a valuable aide in Norm Hill, who has done a good deal of caricature work. In just what manner Hill's ability will be expressed outside of his responsibilities as Managing

WAR SERVICE PROGRAMME FOR WOMEN

All classes operating under the WAR SERVICE PROGRAMME FOR WOMEN begin today, Monday, October 28.

Classes in First Aid call for two hours of the required four-hour programme and are held on Monday, Wednesday and Thursday evening 8 to 10, in the Royal Victoria College. All women students of the University must report to their respective groups (see assignment in today's Daily). Attendance at all lectures and practice periods and with military punctuality are required by the rules of the St. John Ambulance Association. Note the first lecture and practice period, Assembly Hall, Royal Victoria College, 8 to 10 o'clock, tonight.

The schedule for the required two hours of physical training is now worked out (see notices in today's McGill Daily and University bulletin boards). Accordingly, all women students will report for physical training (exercises and drill) to one of the sections A, B, C or D. Note the first classes (see sections and groups) begin training today. Any time-table conflicts must be reported at once and accompanied by a copy of the student's timetable for adjustment. The applications for exemption on medical grounds are being considered by the military committee. Notice of the rulings will be received by the applicants in due course.

(Signed) MURIEL V. ROSCOE
Chairman,
Committee on War Service Programme for Women.

co-ed automatically being a member. These recreations will be discussed and decided upon at this first meeting.

Today's meeting is the first of the two general meetings which the M.W.S.A.A. holds each year. The other is in March at which the President is elected by ballot. Besides the President the executive consists of a Secretary and Treasurer, the latter two being elected at the last general meeting. There is a meeting at least once a month and there is an annual meeting at which the awards for the year are distributed.

The quorum for the first general meeting is 50 but since this is such an insignificant figure compared with the number of women students that it is expected to be a fraction of the attendance of today's meeting.

vine or a go-getter?—How can you budget your time?—What about romance—are Dutch dates a good thing? How can you get to know the staff? Discussion will last for an hour and all new students at McGill are invited.

The second group, with the subject, "Foundations of Democracy" will meet at 5 p.m. in the Committee Room under the leadership of Mrs. Eugene Forsey. This group will study the fundamentals of the democratic ideal with special reference to democratic institutions in Canada and also to the way in which democratic organization is being threatened by the present conflict.

"How are you this evening, honey?"
"All right, but lonely."
"Good and lonely?"
"No, just lonely."
"I'll be right over!"

22% OF FEDERATED CHARITIES' MONEY IS SPENT ON THE CARE OF HOMELESS, NEGLECTED, AND ILL-TREATED CHILDREN.

Have You Forgotten Me?

Of course we haven't forgotten you! Because you and hundreds of others MUST — and WILL be cared for. You're one of the hundreds of human reasons why Federated Charities is asking Montreal for $752,000.

Dollars that are being collected NOW—dollars that will take ragged, wretched, homeless tots off the streets — feed them, clothe them, and make them into healthy, sound-bodied Canadians. Dollars that will provide better living standards in districts where disease and crime are most rampant.

THE NEED IS STILL GREAT — THE TIME IS SHORT
If you haven't yet been called on, telephone PLateau 1891 — a canvasser will be sent to your address immediately.

Remember—33 Welfare Services MUST GO ON. Help, and be glad you can.
